Johannes le Roux. ENTREPRENEUR COACH

Claude for entrepreneurs.

3 hours, your laptop, one job you actually hate. You leave with it running.

THE JOB YOU'RE NAMING

You came in on the last seat and there was no form to fill in — which is fine, and possibly better. Everyone else's job was decided a week ago off two lines. Yours gets named properly, by you, with Claude asking the questions.

Page 6 is where you do that. Do it tonight, not on Saturday morning.

Saturday 22 August 2026 · 10:00 – 13:00

CHIPS · 21 Roodehek Street, Gardens

What you walk out with

6 things, running, on your own machine. Not notes about how you might do it later.

1. A Project that knows your business
   Your documents, numbers and standards, in one place that outlives the chat.

2. Live data
   Your real email, drive or accounts — not a demo.

3. One real artefact
   Built in the room, off your own numbers.

4. A skill that repeats your process
   The job you do every month, captured once.

5. One job running on a schedule
   The first thing that happens without you.

6. A 14-day call and a 30-day review
   Because the room is only a third of it.

BRING

- A laptop and a charger
- One real, messy file from your business — not a tidy example
- Your logo, a couple of photos, an old deck or brochure if you have one
- Claude installed and signed in, with the workshop skill added

> ONE RULE
>
> You won't be asked to write code, open a terminal, or install anything beyond the app itself. If a step ever seems to need it, say so — it means we've taken a wrong turn, not that you've missed something.

The three hours

Roughly a quarter teaching, the rest you, doing it.

TIME		WHAT
10:00	12′	Setup and triage Logged in, everything working. Problems solved now, not at 11:30.
10:12	13′	Name the job Eight jobs on the board. That list is the spine of the session.
10:25	12′	Briefing, not prompting Rewrite your worst prompt as a proper brief. Watch what changes.
10:37	30′	Build the business brain A real Project — your documents, your numbers, your standards.
11:07	15′	Break The café is downstairs.
11:22	30′	Point it at real data Connect your email, drive or accounts. Ask about your own numbers.
11:52	43′	Delegate the job Hand over the job you named. Get back something real.
12:35	15′	Make it repeat Turn what worked into a skill. Put it on a schedule.
12:50	10′	Commit and close One thing you'll do by Friday. We book the 14-day call here.

If you fall behind, get to 11:52. That's the block that makes the day worth it. Everything before it is setup and everything after it is making it repeat — but the middle is where you hand over a real job and get something back.

Briefing, not prompting

The single biggest difference between people who find this underwhelming and people who don't. A prompt asks for a thing. A brief says what you're trying to achieve and hands over what's needed to do it.

THE FIVE PARTS

1. The job. What you actually want done, and why it matters.
2. The context. Your business, your numbers, your constraints.
3. The material. The real file. Not a description of the file.
4. What good looks like. How you'd know it was done properly.
5. The format. A spreadsheet, a page, a document, an email.

WRITE YOUR WORST PROMPT HERE — THE ONE THAT GAVE YOU A DISAPPOINTING ANSWER.

NOW WRITE IT AS A BRIEF.

Name it, then build it

You run three businesses out of one shop in Observatory: a retail shop that is also an online shop and also makes its own stock, a practice doing readings and energy work by appointment, and a school running workshops in person and online. Seven days a week. The reason you can't name one job in a form is that there are three, and they don't share a bottleneck. So we name it first and build it second.

WHAT IT NEEDS FROM YOU

- Do the four questions on page 6 before Saturday — that is the whole of your homework and it takes about fifteen minutes
- Whatever Claude tells you it needs, on your laptop as actual files — an order export, a product list, a booking diary, last month's numbers. Not described. The file
- Three or four things you have written yourself — a product description, a newsletter, a workshop write-up. This is what makes anything it drafts sound like you and not like a wellness brochure
- Your logo and a few product photos

WHAT REPEATS AFTERWARDS

Whichever job you land on, the skill is the same shape: the thing you do over and over, written down once, in your words. Plus one job on a schedule — most likely a Monday morning read of what actually sold and what didn't move.

> WATCH FOR
>
> Three businesses, one owner, and the temptation will be to fix all three before lunch. Pick one. The other two keep. And be careful of the honest answer to question 2 — across the shop, the readings and the workshops, the thing that doesn't scale is you: your voice, your hands, your diary. The jobs worth handing over are the ones that sound like you without needing you. That's a narrower list than it first looks, and it is the right list.

NOTES — ASSUMPTIONS, NUMBERS, THINGS TO FIX LATER

Naming the job

Fifteen minutes, tonight, in a new chat with the skill installed. Four questions. You are not building anything yet — you are working out what to build, so that Saturday's build block goes into making the thing instead of deciding what it is.

1 Tell it who you are

> “I own The Magickal Gem in Observatory — a metaphysical shop that sells online and in person, energy work and readings by appointment, and creative workshops. Here is what a normal week actually looks like.”

Don't tidy it up. The Sunday trading, the parcels, the festival stall, the class that had to be rescheduled, the Google review you answered at ten at night. All of it counts.

2 Find the biggest tax on your week

> “Out of everything I just listed, which takes the most of my time and adds the least? Ask me questions before you answer.”

It will get it wrong the first time and you should tell it so. Two rounds of correcting it is what turns a guess into your actual answer.

3 Put it in one sentence

> “Write that job as one sentence, the way I'd hand it to somebody on a Monday morning.”

Write that sentence on the first page of this book, in pen. It is the only thing you have to arrive with.

4 Ask what it needs

> “What would you need from me to actually do that job? List the files.”

Then put those files on your laptop tonight. This is the step people skip, and it is the one that decides whether Saturday produces something real or a good conversation.

Before you leave

Most training evaporates inside a fortnight. This is the page that decides whether yours does.

THE ONE THING I'LL DO BY FRIDAY

WHAT I BUILT TODAY, AND WHERE IT LIVES

WHAT I'D BUILD NEXT, IF THIS WORKS

WHAT HAPPENS NOW

- Day 1 — your asset pack: Project template, the skill you built, my prompt library
- Day 14 — a 60-minute group call. One win and one blocker each. This is the call that decides whether it sticks
- Day 30 — a written review: what's working, what isn't, what's next

STUCK BETWEEN NOW AND THEN

Tell Claude what happened — it can fix most of it. If it can't, mail me. I'd rather hear about it on the Tuesday than at the 14-day call.
